Citation Option 1   The first way to provide your citations is just to list them at the end of the homework assignment. For example:

My sources are:

1. Brooks, Fred P. The Mythical Man-Month. Addison-Wesley, 1975.

2. Wikiepedia article: `https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Fred_Brooks`

3. [[XXX TODO: add a new 'item' for each new source]]

Citation Option 2   One way to add citations is to put the citation information in a footnote.[1] Whenever you have something that needs a citation, you can add another footnote like this.[2]

---

[1] Brooks, Fred P. The Mythical Man-Month. Addison-Wesley, 1975.

[2] [[XXX TODO: Another citation goes here.]]

Citation Option 3   By default, we have it setup so that LaTex will look for bibentries in biblio.bib. For example, I have a signed copy of The Mythical Man-Month [1] in German! (Now, look at the next page of the compiled PDF). To find a starting point for bib entries, I recommend searching for the resource on Google scholar (`https://scholar.google.com`). When you find the article, click the quote symbol under it, then the hyperlink for BibTex (and, ask if you encounter any issues). Of course, the LaTex Wikibook is often helpful.
